1 The Design

The Design

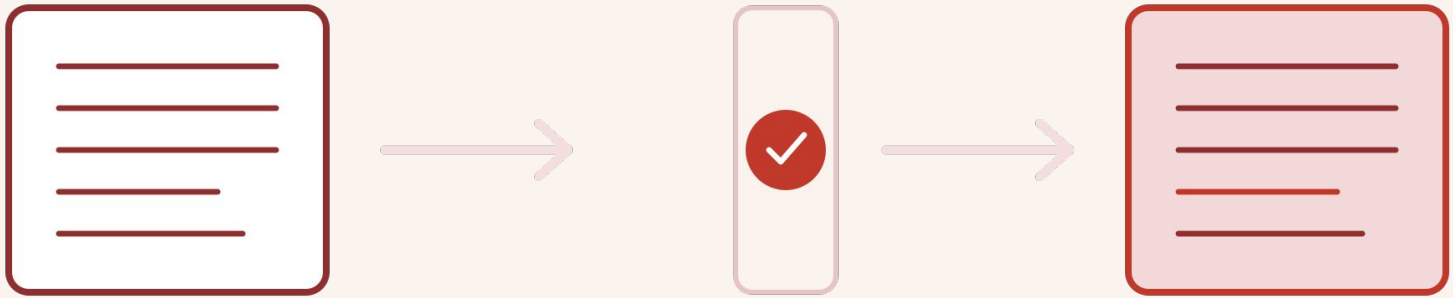

The trainee's program targeted a wire-transfer-adjacent department with a specific click-rate reduction goal, quarterly simulations, and monthly short training modules. The design closely mirrored the structure covered throughout today.

2 The Refinement

The Refinement

The bank's actual training team reviewed and lightly adjusted the design before implementing it, changing very little from the original structure. This shows how close a well built training exercise can come to real professional work.

3 The Lesson

The Lesson

The program design skill practiced today is not just an academic exercise but a genuinely transferable professional capability.

CARRYING THIS FORWARD

A trainee's exercise became a real bank's program

The skills built in this Hands-On are the same skills a real security team used to launch a real program.
