Case Study: A Human-Factor Audit

A complete human-factor audit cycle at Meridian Trust Bank pulled together several threads from today into one report.

1 The Audit

The Audit

The audit combined findings from the loan processing risk assessment, the vishing penetration test, and a checklist review of the department's awareness program. Multiple evidence sources strengthened the overall findings.

2 The Report

The Report

The report framed the caller verification gap in terms of financial risk exposure and paired it with the specific recommendation the bank ultimately implemented.

3 The Tracking

The Tracking

The remediation item was assigned a named owner and a defined deadline, and closure was verified through a brief follow-up test before the finding was marked resolved. This complete cycle is what makes an audit genuinely effective, not just informative.

CARRYING THIS FORWARD

An audit is only as strong as the evidence behind it, and only as effective as the follow-through after it.
